

CULTURE

Aston Martin Have Built a Yacht and It's as Cool as You Would Expect

BLAZE PRESS · MAY 13, 2015

Aston Martin is a car manufacturer made famous for its precise and meticulous attention to detail in its luxury sports cars and now it's going to be branching out into the world of yachts, and their first yacht is as cool as you would expect.

At 37 feet long the first yacht will be appropriately named AM37 and promises Aston Martin 'handling & performance' and whilst we can't comment on how the boat will handle on the open ocean, we can say that it will certainly pack a punch in the performance area as it will be capable of reaching 60 knots (70 mph).

It also features all the gadgets and gizmos you would expect, including a HD touchscreen with GPS. No word on the engine stats or the price tag just yet, but the AM37 is expected to be available in 2016.

h/t Airows