The Aston Martin AM37 powerboat has made its US debut at Yachts Miami Beach, having first been premiered at last year’s Monaco Yacht Show.

According to Marek Reichman of Aston Martin, the AM37 day cruiser is a “breath of fresh air”, able to carry up to eight passengers. The tender was built in the UK as part of a collaboration with Quintessence Yachts.

The vessel features a unique sliding deck and on-board computer technology to allow the cockpit to be covered, protecting guests from the elements. The deck features three carbon panels, operated by a key to fold them under the aft deck, covering the cockpit.

There is also an electro-hydraulic carbon fibre bimini top stowed above the engine hatch, as well as a swim platform which extends from the aft deck. Guests can spend the night on board, as the table can be converted into a double bed. There is also a refrigerator, microwave, espresso machine and toilet available on board.

Mariella Mengozzi, CEO at Quintessence Yachts commented, “As the exclusive builders of the Aston Martin powerboats, Quintessence Yachts translate[s] design into functionality and technology to enhance the customer experience.

“Yachts Miami Beach is a strategic event for us to reach our clients and we are proud to showcase the AM37, a boat that represents an entirely new concept for the yachting world. We are very gratified by the strong interest in our yacht before the boat show and this is the right time to present it to an expectant American audience.”
